Some of the ideas discussed is having a tutoring program with volunteer tutors, have guest speakers come to meetings or workshops, and continue to provide teen events such as movie night.

ORAL COMMUNICATIONS

Recreation Supervisor Cheryl Salazar reported on updates within the department regarding programs and events.

Commissioner Diep-Tran presented about financial literacy and becoming more involved in the community. Andrew Diep-Tran started the non-profit Business Economics International. Would like to form some type of partnership where the non-profit could teach K-12 kids about business and financial literacy and the team is working on the curriculum to be tailored to specific age groups through live virtual learning. The Youth Commission can help by expanding the program throughout San Marcos and expose students to the opportunity and support each other.
